

Dirt Series

The women-only Dirt Series from Rocky Mountain Bicycles is the largest women's mountain biking programme in the world. It travels throughout Whistler BC, Alberta, Washington, Oregon, California, and Utah. The weekend camps include learning skills from experienced coaches, afternoon rides, bike maintenance clinics, fitness and social activities. The Dirt Series began in 2000 to bring more women into the sport and has expanded to now run more than 15 camps per year. "We've had a growing number of European women participate in our camps which is great," says Candace Shadley from DS. Find out more at: www.dirtseries.com.
